A MESSAGE TO OUR PATRONS

Oh Well, You Can't Please Every One!!!

During the past four weekends you have witnessed an effort by certain groups within the 'community' to change the admission policies of Lost and Found. Without consulting the Management, they embarked on a campaign of picketing and harassment aimed, not just at Lost and Found, but at our patrons. The Management, knowing that our admission rules are A. Non-discriminatory, B. Very liberal, and C. Equally enforced according to District of Columbia laws, chose to ignore these pickets.

After four weeks we were finally contacted by a representative of one of the moderate factions engaged in the picketing. After a very frank discussion, it was agreed there had been a lack of communication, thus causing the misconceptions about our policies. This group and the other moderates have subsequently withdrawn their support, leaving a handful of radicals to walk the line (excuse the pun) alone.

We apologize for the inconvenience, as well as the verbal garbage you were forced to hear spewed from the mouths of the pickets as you tried to exercise your right of freedom of choice. Thank you for your support and consequent rebuttal of this small band of radicals who claimed to be the "representatives and moral guardians for the 'community'." When it came to making a choice between a fair policy and a flagrant case of BIASED picketing and harassment, you voted the only way you could, WITH YOUR FEET, AS YOU CROSSED THE PICKET LINE AND ENTERED THE LOST AND FOUND.

THANK YOU

HALLOWEEN (Was No Drag)

Halloween (or as Mame Dennis calls it, "The High Holy Days of Drag") descended on Lost and Found, and in one brief evening we saw enough glitter and sequins to rival the follies. Dorothy Lamour, Mother Nature, and Vera Vamp shared the same runway and collected prizes in the comic division of the costume contest. A table of lovely dowagers (left over from a D.A.R. convention?) watched from the sidelines as a fabulous peacock, outdistanced King Tut and a Moon Maiden for the honor of best costume. Catherine Deneuve was named "Best in Drag," over two lovely finalists; first runner-up Jessie; and second runner-up Lana Turner.

The show for the evening, produced and directed by Fannie Brice, was expertly executed by the cast and enthusiastically applauded by the audience. Mame Dennis was — as always — a most gracious hostess. She handled the show in her own unique fashion, which combines a rare blend of professionalism and humor. (She had an assist from a "Fire Island Telephone Repairman.")

As the last feather disappeared through the door and the winners hauled away their TV sets and silver cigarette boxes, as the last piece of glitter was removed from the carpet and the moon set slowly in the west, we bade a fond farewell to our first Halloween happening, know that next year's party would be hard pressed to rival this one for sheer delight and fun.

"OUR POLICY"

The Management of the "Lost and Found," after two weeks of attempted harrassment, takes this opportunity to make the following statement to the public:

For admission, the management requires two valid identifications. A valid identification is any document or card legally issued by the government or an employer, which provides the name, date of birth, and signature of the holder. Photographs will be required only if there is a question of validity of the identification presented. Draft cards are not acceptable as they are too easily obtained and forged.

The above identification requirement is no way intended to discriminate against any person. District of Columbia Law makes the Management responsible and it must be the arbiter when there is ANY question involving identification.

In addition, management has set the tone governing the dress of any individual entering its restaurant. These House Regulations on dress are posted in the foyer, are liberal, equally applied and should not offend anyone.

Lost and Found has been designed in hopes of providing and improving the social activities within the community and it welcomes any suggestions that may be helpful in improving the quality of its services. One of the services, the Lost and Found's bulletin, "The Classified," is available for free announcements for ANY group within the community. This service was available prior to opening and not as a result of picket demands

The management will continue to enforce its House Regulations on dress and to require two (2) identifications from all patrons and persons 18 to 20 years old will not be admitted. The reason for the 18 to 20 regulation is that there is always an adult willing to buy a juvenile a drink and it is impossible to check each individual drink served.

 SHOWSTOPPERS *****

On the evenings of November 29th and 30th, Lost and Found, in conjunction with Henry Street, Inc., will present excerpts from "Fanny Brice's Showstoppers." The production features hit songs from Broadway Shows including such notable showstoppers as "Those Beautiful Girls," from Follies, "Let Me Entertain You," from Gypsy, "It's A Typical Day," from Little Abner and the "Tea For Two" number (with a cast of thousands), from No No Nannette. Because of the length of the show, it will be presented in two acts. The first act will be performed on Monday the 29th and the second act on Tuesday, the 30th. The show will start at 10:00 o'clock. Tickets for both nights will be sold on a first come first served basis and no seats will be reserved. The sale price of the tickets is $3.00 for a single performance (one night) or $5.00 if you wish to attend both evenings. Please remember, that each night will be a different show. Tickets are on sale at the Lost and Found and may be purchased from John LaMothe.

For those customers who wish to have dinner, it will be served from 6:00 to 9:00 with reservations taken no later than 7:30. Dinner guests who wish to see the performances will be required to purchase tickets.

Because of the publicity and rave reviews that greeted the original performance of Showstoppers, last September at Trinity Theatre, we know there will be a stampede for tickets. So don't be disappointed, get your ticket or tickets early and come enjoy two of the most delightful nights of entertainment you will ever experience.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR HELP

In the first issue of the "Classified," there were a few (would you believe quite a few) errors. I want to thank all my friends who so patiently pointed out each and every error to me (what would I do without you??) . . . The most talked about error was a mistake in the spelling of a very famous swimming movie star of the early fifties (remember??) . . . Just to show you that I'm not too important to take criticism, I now publically and in print admit my mistake and offer this correction Her name is not Spelled EASTER WILLIAMS, IT is spelled EEASTER WILLYUMS thank you and Love you.
